Isley Asks Peak Production To Guard Against Inflation

OTTAWA, (CP)—Finance Minister Isley, disclosing in his budget speech in the commons Thursday night that the over-all deficit for 1945-46 fiscal year was $1,730,000,000—$222,000,000 lower than for the previous year—called for peak production of civilian goods to guard against inflation.

Presenting his first peacetime budget for a full year since he took over the post of finance minister in 1940, Mr. Isley said that expenditures were needed to replace those which in wartime had kept production and employment at a high level. Money to cover the expenditures was in the hands of civilians and others, but could not be spent unless goods were produced.

Peak production also would be a safeguard against the inflation which still threatened the country.

Reviewing the financial activities for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1946, he said total revenues amounted to $2,028,834,000 including about $72,500,000 in refundable taxes. In the 1944-45 year, revenues totalled $2,006,834,000 including $72,500,000 in refundable taxes.

Expenditures for the 1945-46 year totalled $4,692,000,000, a decrease of $555,000,000 from the preceding year.

"As total revenue, exclusive of refundable taxes, was $2,006,834,000, the over-all deficit for 1945-46 was $1,730,000,000, a figure approximately $222,000,000 lower than the deficit of the previous year," said Mr. Isley. "The $1,730,000,000 represented the increase in the net debt during the year."

"As at March 31, 1946, our total unamortized fund balance, including refundable taxes, amounted to $10,709,000,000, as now estimated."

"The net debt was $13,034,000,000, which reflects, of course, an increase during the year of the amount of the budgetary deficit. The funded debt carried annual interest charges of $1,730,000,000, the average rate of interest was 2.59 percent, compared with 2.51 percent as at March 31, 1945, the increase being due to the fact that most of the addition to our debt during the year took the form of three percent Victory Bonds."

Prosperity at Hand

Before outlining reasons why the property and employment of the country had continued high despite the drop in war expenditures, Mr. Isley referred to the fall of the dominion and the provinces to reach agreement during the dominion-provincial conference.

"We are enjoying a level of employment and prosperity that we have never experienced before in peacetime," he said. "For that, in the hungry and devastated world of today, we should be thankful. On the other hand, we do not have the spirit of agreement, of co-operation and mutual confidence that we had hoped; on matters of public policy, we do not seem to be finding the peacetime equivalent to the 'win the war' objective that kept us united and strong during the war and enabled us to reach high levels of national achievement."

Must Use Caution

"Lacking an agreement that would have enabled us and the provincial governments to make plans with confidence and boldness, we must now proceed more cautiously, thankful that the present prosperity makes many of our problems less urgent for a short time."

If there were no interruptions to production, Canada's gross national product this year would total about $11,000,000,000 almost double that of 1939—the first year before the outbreak of war—and only slightly lower than 1944, one of peak war production years.

Canada had made a remarkably fast switch from war service and

List Highlights Fiscal Report

Total expenditures for year ended March 31, 1946, $4,692,000,000, a decrease of $555,000,000.

Probable gross national income for this year $11,000,000,000. War peak was $11,750,000,000.

About 25 percent of this year's expenditures directly for the benefit of veterans.

Outlook for high level of employment this year bright.

Canada's present level of employment and prosperity sets new peacetime high.

Failure to complete dominion-provincial agreements necessitates cautious planning.

Heavy demand for consumer goods, backed by purchasing power, have largely replaced war requirements.

Large investments by private industry delayed by shortages.

Work to peacetime jobs and objectives. The main reason for this was that war expenditures had been replaced by expenditures from other sources. The four chief sources were:

1. Continued heavy demand for Canadian food, raw materials and civilian manufactured goods for export.

2. Capital expenditure by private enterprise on new construction, equipment and machinery.

3. Expenditures by consumers from out of cash reserves accumulated during the war.

4. Non-war expenditures by governments and municipalities on projects which had been postponed during the war but which now had to be proceeded with.

Cautious Forecast

"While I hesitate to venture into the field of forecasting economic developments in a world as chaotic and eventful as the one we are living in at the present time, it appears that these major influences which have maintained a high level of expenditure for Canadian goods and services despite the reduction in war expenditure will persist for the remainder of this fiscal year, and beyond it, unless further difficulties arise to retard production. "If these difficulties can be avoided, then I think we may reasonably expect a level of production adequate to maintain a high level of employment and production through the year. Indeed, the pressure of expenditure in many fields is so great that action by the government and others is needed to prevent rapidly increasing prices and the development of inflation. "He described this as the 'critical year' in the fight against inflation and he addressed a special plea to businessmen to help keep prices down."

Net Tax Return Up $48,000,000

OTTAWA, (CP)—The government obtained approximately $48,000,000 more in net tax revenue in 1945-46 than in 1944-45 despite substantial tax reductions made in the last budget.

Finance Minister Isley Thursday night told the commons in the fiscal portion of his budget.

Mr. Isley said this was because total tax revenue, which at $2,275,000,000, was $100,000,000 less than the preceding year's revenue of $2,375,000,000, down $84,000,000 from the 1944-45 fiscal year.

Non-tax revenues, from post office receipts and return on investments, increased by about $15,000,000 to $100,000,000, bringing the total of ordinary revenues to $2,375,000,000, down $84,000,000 from the 1944-45 fiscal year.

Capital expenditure by private enterprise on new construction, equipment and machinery.

Non-war expenditures by governments and municipalities on projects which had been postponed during the war but which now had to be proceeded with.

Says Veterans Cheat on Cars

OTTAWA, (CP)—Reconstruction Minister Howe said Thursday the priority system for veterans on new cars and trucks "has broken down completely" and alleged that veterans have been re-selling their cars to civilians shortly after purchase "on a colossal scale."

He told the veterans committee of the commons in his department stopped the policy of issuing priority certificates to veterans two months ago when certificates exceeded available cars by about 60,000.

BY H. R. HARDY

OTTAWA, (CP)—A suggestion was made Thursday before the senate tourist industry committee that the government set aside $500,000 for the purchase of an additional 40,000 acres of woodlands to extend the Gatineau national park, now part of the federal district area.

R. P. Sparks, president of the federal woodlands preservation committee, told the committee that the C.N.R. had considered erecting a 2,500-room chalet in the park.

He thought the C.P.R. which operates the Gatineau railway line, would likewise be interested in providing similar tourist facilities.

The park is composed of a 16,000-acre tract of woodland directly north of Ottawa.

BANFF, Alta., (CP)—Lighting of the home and business place of the future will be planned to take full advantage of modern electrical developments. A. H. Wegner of Spokane, Wash., told delegates to the 56th annual convention of the Canadian Electrical association Wednesday.

He said this would not mean radical changes in present day lighting facilities, but would require research services and the training of skilled technicians by electrical firms as part of their sales program in order that the home owner might be guided in the correct use of lighting.

He predicted increasing use of electrical power for domestic services because of its low cost.

U.N.'s First Year

This week marks the first anniversary of the second great attempt to obtain world peace through a world organization of nations. It was on June 25, 1945, that its charter was ratified and the United Nations officially came into existence.

This first year has been far stormier than the early years of the old League of Nations. It has been a year of unending disputes before the Security Council. Despite its newness, the United Nations has faced almost every conceivable issue, and has acquired new prestige thereby.

The Russian-Chinese controversy is a case in point. This has not been finally settled. It remains, despite Russian protests, on the agenda of unfinished business. Nevertheless, the Security Council deserves high praise for the fearless way in which it has handled this issue, despite the fact that it involved a charge of aggression against one of the greatest military powers of the world.

It would have been fatally easy to find some excuse for ignoring or detaching the issue in the old League tradition. Instead it was faced and threshed out, even after the Soviet delegate had been expelled for the government's displeasure by walking out on the Council session. While events in Iran are still veiled in obscurity there can be little doubt that U.N. intervention served to hasten the Russian withdrawal, and gave the Iranian government a chance to settle its difficulties with the Soviet Union on a reasonably fair basis.

Thus at the very outset of its career, the United Nations accomplished what the old League never did—it showed a great power to alter its policy. To the smaller nations, this must be a source of great encouragement.

While this and other controversies were occupying the headlines, the whole vast organization has been working in the background. The Security Council are fully set up and ready for action. Subordinate organs—the Social and Economic Council, the Military Committee, the World Court, the Atomic Energy Commission and the Trusteeship Council—are all in the making. An improvised but adequate headquarters has been established, and a secretariat created.

A few months more and the organization should be ready to undertake all the myriad tasks of international co-operation allotted to it.

No one doubts that the severest tests of the United Nations still lie ahead. Nevertheless, a sound foundation has been laid.

Down With Tipping

The Pere Marquette Railway of Michigan has inaugurated what may prove a revolution in railway practice. It has abolished tipping in its dining cars.

In its manifesto, the company describes the tipping habit as a "rummy old custom." That hits the nail exactly on the head. The practice is an unpleasant importation from Europe, which first took root at expensive foreign-style resorts in the eastern states, and gradually spread over the whole continent.

Today it is firmly entrenched, not only on railway diners, but in Pullman cars, hotels and restaurants. Now it is a foothold it adds very substantially to the expenses of the travelling public, without contributing anything to the fare or security of the beneficiaries.

Indeed the real originators of tipping are employers in the various service trades who paid their employees less than living wage, and relied on their customers to make up the deficit with tips. Minimum wage laws and the general rise in wages over the last decade have to some extent checked this abuse, but even today tipping and low pay usually go together. In recent years, however, a practice has grown up in some restaurants and night clubs, by which the employer appropriates all or part of the tips the waiters and waitresses receive.

In the long run, the abolition of tipping would probably benefit service employees financially, and it would certainly remove a source of unpleasantness and humiliation from their work.

Now It's A 'Bumper Crop'

So completely has the western moisture picture changed, that predictions of a month ago that we'd be lucky to get half a crop have now been revised to a better than average yield over the prairies as a whole. In Alberta, the words "bumper crop" are heard in some quarters closely connected with agriculture.

In the south-eastern and south-western Saskatchewan, rainfall has been very heavy, and expectations are that the grain harvest will be stored in the earth to carry the crops through to harvest.

In the Edmonton district, grain fields and grass lands never looked greener or more promising. Edmonton rainfall during June has already exceeded the long-time average by the twenty-fifth of the month.

With much greater water than last year, and prospects so bright for a heavy yield, Canada should be able to supply all the food needs of its own people and have some surplus to export.

Poland at Crossroads

Next Sunday's referendum in Poland may well mark a crossroads in that country's history, for it should give the people their first opportunity to express their opinion of their Communist-dominated coalition government and its policy of close collaboration with Soviet Russia.

Actually these issues are not being directly presented to the voters. The referendum asks them whether they support the government's land reform and nationalization of industry program, whether they approve the annexation of large sections of eastern Poland, and whether they favor one chamber or two-chamber parliament, when one is finally elected.

On the first of these issues, an overwhelming affirmative vote is expected, since all the major parties endorse the government's policies on those points. The conflict is developing over the third question. The Communists and other extreme left-wingers want a one-chamber parliament, while the principal opposition group, the Peasant Party, headed by Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, former premier of the London Polish government, insists on a two-chamber body. Both factions have accepted the referendum as a minor dispute as a trial of strength.

Most observers agree that Mikolajczyk will be overwhelmingly endorsed if the election is a fair one. Poland is still a largely agricultural country, and the Peasant Party as its special spokesman. It is also supported by the Church and by all the Nationalist elements who fear that the present regime is heading for complete domination by Russia, and even for the absorption of Poland into the Soviet system.

However, the prospects of a fair election are not so bright. The government has been carrying on a campaign of terrorism and repression against its opponents. Many branches of the Peasant Party have been suppressed by the secret police, and thousands of members arrested. In what looks like an attempt to destroy the party piecemeal, the ruling clique seems determined to stay in power at all costs.

On the other hand, Mikolajczyk is widely accused of collaborating with the underground terrorist organizations which have kept the Polish countryside in an uproar since the end of the war. The opportunities for a genuine expression of public opinion are therefore not good, though, after the disaster of the revolutionary changes of the last seven years, such an expression is desperately needed.

B.C. Coalition Victory

The heavy majorities, polled by the two Coalition candidates in the election in British Columbia, leave no doubt of the popularity of the Coalition government. The result was hardly in doubt even before polling, for Point Grey is traditionally a Conservative stronghold.

The new members are A.R. Macdonald and L.F. Stevenson, replacing H.B. McIntosh and A.A. Paton. Both Conservative members of the Coalition, whose deaths created the vacancies.

The winning was not but the majorities were heavy. The C.C.F. supplied the only real opposition, but even its well-known candidates, Mrs. Dorothy Steves and George Isherwood, received only one vote for each two and a half polled by the Coalitionists.

The government now has thirty-seven supporters in the legislature, the C.C.F. ten and Labor one.

The Third Column

ALTERNATIVES TO VETO
By Donald Bell

Russian diplomacy has in itself a severe defect upon itself by the exercise of its veto right in the Security Council. It was the Soviet Union which cried so loudly for action against France Spain. Britain and the United States had worked hard to bring the French from raising the issue before the Council, but when Poland acted, introducing a resolution calling for severer of resolutions with the dictator, America reluctantly agreed to its discussion.

Public pressure was so strong that Britain too, voted for a compromise that recommended to the General Assembly withdrawal of recognition from General Franco and other steps against Fascism.

Mr. Voronko, who was steppe in the United Nations, Spanish policy from defeat. He objected to the reference of the subcommittee's report to the General Assembly, and excluded the Soviet veto power. As a result, the United Nations will be unable to take any action against Spain.

The real reason for this action, it appears, was not the vagaries of the water of the subcommittee's recommendations, but Russian fears lest the General Assembly become an institution for treating with questions of war and peace. The Russians evidently preferred a self-inflicted wound to a Pyrrhic victory in the General Assembly.

For, once this precedent was established, the General Assembly authority, the Assembly could proceed in cases in which Russia was not a party. It could proceed in cases in which Russia was not a party. It could proceed in cases in which Russia was not a party.

There is no loophole in the Charter through which the big power veto can be circumvented. This is not the result of Russian diplomatic finesse—the United States also has a veto. That was when the Charter was being drawn. It is doubtful indeed if the United States Senate would have accepted a treaty organization which made the United States subject to a majority vote of other powers.

The veto right was conceived as the compensation for the otherwise debatable principle of the equality of all nations. Individual nations are not equals, but nations are not. The voice of ten million Ethiopians or six million Belgians is not equal to that of a handful of 140 million Americans or 200 million Russians.

The only alternative that appears to the veto right is the world state. Even then, the rights of minor nations must have to be protected and that would imply some form of veto power for the minority. But the world state is still only a remote possibility and we have to think of our present world organization.

It is quite clear that a majority of the small nations are opposed to the big power veto right. The smaller countries can increase their influence only by a so-called democratization of the U.N. voting procedure. But the big powers should be very careful before they sacrifice the advantage they have assured themselves in order to gain the power that improvement in their diplomatic relations.

Nations may find it very annoying to be outvoted, but on one occasion after another by the Soviet exercise of the veto power. But in a changing world, the shoe may be on the other foot and the western powers may find on occasion, to their relief that the right to veto a decision they dislike comes in mighty handy.

Make A Job Of It

The old age pension scale is to be increased in making the announcement, the Minister of health and welfare did not say what the increase will be, but only that the limit of $30 per month will be raised.

There will be, as there should be, a national approval of this upward revision, and the approval will be stronger in proportion as the increase is substantial. The present scale is inadequate to the point of being positively unjust. It never has been better than makeshift and the rise in the cost of living has made it cruelly ridiculous.

It will not be sufficient to raise the allowances by the calculated increase in the cost of living that would leave the pensioners no better off than they were four or five years ago, and they were not at that time getting enough to provide for a reasonable standard of living. The pensioners should be marked up substantially more than the rise that has occurred in the price level.

It is to be hoped also that when the legislation comes before parliament the members will take the opportunity to raise the pension scheme in several other respects. The age limit would be lowered to 60 years, 65 as the absolute maximum. The requirement that one must plead poverty in order to qualify for pension should be struck out. Everything that savors of charity or relief should be eliminated, and pensions made payable as matter of right.

Why not, as the scheme is to be brought under review, re-amp it entirely, and elevate it into a national plan for the payment of retirement allowances? Every citizen of Canada should be entitled to receive a pension on reaching the required age, with no questions asked about his financial position. Those who do not need pensions would have to pay back, and the government would have to pay back, and the government would have to pay back.

In Alberta's Favor

The consumer is to pay the wage increase because the wages in the soft coal fields in the United States, as a matter of course. The official announcement is that the price of coal will also pay what the mine-operators lost, or part of it, through the recent strike. In order to collect the money from his pocket, the price of soft coal has been raised slightly more than 40 cents per ton.

This should make it easier in future to sell Alberta coal in Ontario. Large quantities of coal are shipped from that province from Ontario, for industrial use. The 40 cent price increase for this fuel will lessen by that amount the price handicap against which Alberta mines have had to compete in that market.

Indirectly this may not be the important effect so far as concerns the Alberta industry, because coal is so scarce that Ontario will be likely to raise the coal it can get from this province even at the former price differential. If advantage to Alberta producers will come when the scarcity has ended and they again have to compete with the plentiful production of the United States coal. An improvement in their position of 40 cents per ton in laid-down cost would help them to gain and hold business.

When an industry is put out of production for a time its competitors are to the benefit, if there is any benefit to any party. The Alberta mining industry is the fortunate competitor in this case, which stands to benefit because the United States mines were tied up so long they cannot now supply their former customers in Ontario.

Decentralizing Control

Wage control in the Dominion is to be relaxed. War labor boards will be given power to grant increases where these seem "just and reasonable" in the cases of employees earning not more than $250 per month. This labor board gets the power to induce stability in industrial affairs, to speed up the handling of appeals for wage adjustments, and to avoid interruptions of production.

That something was needed to bring about these happy results has been obvious. It disputes have been crippling the industrial machinery at a time when this should be operating at the maximum. The power thus given to the boards will have to be exercised with discretion. The desirable objects are to be attained without stimulating inflation. Marking up the scale of money wages can be dangerous unless it is accompanied by a corresponding increase in the output of things to buy.

The Cost Of Strikes

By Bruce Hutchison
It is now possible to reckon up the direct losses of the recent major strikes in the United States. The indirect losses, in increased prices and living costs, are incalculable. Yet strikers lost $1,050,000,000 in wages. But wages losses were much greater because strikers threw out of work many not on strike. The coal strike alone affected 400,000 coal miners and made idle 1,300,000 others. Strikers lost 113,105,300 days. To them must be added time lost by other workers as a direct result.

The loss of wages and time by strikers and non-strikers reflected itself in loss of goods and services. The output of steel was reduced by 11,400,000 tons and diminished steel supplies affected many industries. The nation lost "two months' steel production."

About 113,000,000 tons of bituminous coal were lost through strikes and shortage affected the output of many industries. Coal being one of the key shortages, the loss of coal was nearly everywhere, the reduction in American output was a disaster not only to the United States, but Canada is one of its immediate victims.

Strikes caused the loss of 3,150,000,000 board feet of lumber. Part of the loss was enough to build 98,000 houses.

Strikes also cost the United States 2,900,000 automobiles and trucks. The automobile industry reckons that disturbances in its plants and subsidiary industries are equivalent to a six-months' shutdown. Washing machine losses are 45,000 units—the equivalent of 45 weeks of production. Losses in electrical ranges are 95,000. Thousands of smaller items of production were affected.

All these losses, of course, touch the strikers as well as the public stockpile, and further workers must jointly accept the higher prices which followed higher wages.

These depressing and ironical results of the strikes is that they have retarded the time when stable prices may be expected. Production was postponed by strikes and shortages, thus exaggerated, increased the pressure for higher prices. The cost of all wage gains. Many unions are prepared to strike again, to recoup themselves for rises in the cost of living already produced by wage increases—the old, familiar and futile spiral.

BRITISH POLICY

New York Herald Tribune
By her actions in India and Egypt Britain has gained immeasurably in prestige and has consolidated, rather than dissipated, the resources that remain to her after two terrible wars.

Today in Europe

By Randolph Churchill
LONDON -- I have recently been in Italy and Switzerland. In each I found the main topics of the Russian propaganda everyone I met talked of war as being almost certain in the next two or three years. The Russian propaganda has been fanned by stories of Russian movements in Austria and by Tito's Communists in Yugoslavia. Some who should have known better have gone so far as to imply that a violent Russian attack on Trieste is imminent.

People who think and write this way lack understanding of the most important fact today is that Russia wants at least 25 years of peace. It may be some eventually by proposed Russian Communists and war, to conquer the world, but no one who knows anything about politics can believe she would do this. There is a very simple reason: Russia would certainly lose.

Any politician or publicist who has been in Russia knows that Russia is playing the Russian game, which is to produce a state of war.

Russia has no fleet to speak of, a very small force of long-range bombers, and no atom bomb. Her air force is made up of thirteen members of the Politburo are eminently sane—would dream of making war in such conditions.

That is why Western powers, though distressed at Russia's refusal to co-operate are not afraid of her. The Russian divisions based on the frontiers that he has hundreds of Russian divisions behind him, and that he could overrun Trieste tomorrow.

Perhaps he could—though, knowing something of the relative equipment of the Anglo-American and Russian forces, I doubt it. But suppose it were to take this step. Suppose the British and American troops were all killed or captured or ran away, it would only be the beginning. Wars are not decided by the loss of a battle.

No one knows this better than Tito. His training in Moscow has given him a true and intimate knowledge of the Russian politics. As long as Britain and the United States pursue a common policy of defending peace and of maintaining the Soviet Union and its satellites, there can be no war. The Russians understand this. The world is understood by the rest of the world, the sooner we can get on with the job of re-building a shattered world.

The Road Ahead

By J. Harper Prowse, M.L.A.
Perhaps it is time, many say, only when we have a stable and world government with world courts, and world armies, or world police, to enforce world law. Perhaps it is time, many say, when we have a world government, the sooner we can get on with the job of re-building a shattered world.

It is so easy to dream of the distant future, and admire the beauty of the attainable green pasture.

The problems which face Canada are little things compared with the problems which face the world. The differences and misunderstandings between Eastern and Western Canada are microscopic cracks compared with the crevasses which separate the nations.

Yet each passing year seems to widen the breach between Ontario and Quebec, between East and West. If we cannot here in Canada forge our petty differences, and weld our country into a single, united people willing to make some real effort to solve in the positive way the various problems, then the chaos which lie between the various peoples, nations, and groups in the world.

If we love peace in the world, and if we believe in destiny and the better future, if we believe in the possibility of world government, then we had best start to put our own house in order now. And the place to start is with ourselves. When we have corrected our individual shortcomings then we can start to help the community. Then the district, then the province, and then the Dominion. When we have completed that task, then we will have the strength, and perhaps the resources, to help the world to solve the world's problems. Charity isn't the only thing which begins at home.

Ask Co-operation On Sale of Milk

Edmonton restaurant proprietors and milk vendors have been requested by the city health department to co-operate in the carrying out of the provisions of the by-law in connection with the sale of milk for consumption in restaurants.

THE BY-LAW PROVIDES that customers requesting fluid milk for beverage purposes will be served with such in a bottle of the size desired with the cap as placed over the bottle by the dairy. The cap may be removed in the presence of the customer if so desired.

It was enacted because considerable variation has prevailed in the method by which fluid milk for beverage purposes has been served in city restaurants. Some of these methods constituted a serious health hazard by exposing the milk to repeated contamination, and the variation in cream content in individual portions was marked.

A price of six cents for the half pint size bottle has been set by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for all city restaurants with the exception of a few whose basic charge has always been 10 cents.

IN HIS COMMUNICATION to restaurant proprietors, Dr. G. M. Little, medical officer for health, points out that many establishments are already carrying out the provisions of the by-law in Edmonton, and in other cities, and some have reported that carrying out this important food has increased.

The co-operation of restaurant proprietors and milk vendors is requested in the communication from Dr. Little. Penalties for non-observance of the terms of the by-law are provided.

No July Boost In Butter Ration

There will be no increase in the Canadian butter ration during July, according to officials in the Edmonton branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questioned today about the recent Ottawa announcement that an increase could be expected in July, the Edmonton officials stated they have received no notification of such an increase and that the July ration would be no different from that of the past.

A SPOKESMAN from the office of the Alberta branch Commissioner explained that butter production throughout Canada, suffered a 9.7 per cent decrease during the first five months of the year.

In Alberta, there was a production decrease of about 6.6 per cent during the first five months with a slight increase in May and June. He explained the decrease as being due to the greatly increased liquid milk consumption, and the fact that in some areas, cows have been milked poorly because pastures have been suffering from lack of rain. The recent heavy rains in this province have benefited pastures, and an increase in production is forecast.

HERE NEXT WEEK: Leland H. Auman, formerly Canadian trade commissioner and vice-consul at New York City, who will be a visitor in Edmonton on July 3. ## Varied Attractions For Dominion Day

The long week-end which celebrates Dominion Day on July 1, one of the few occasions this year that a holiday falls on a Monday, will be observed by Edmontonians in a variety of ways, with a lot depending on the weather. Sports, travelling and just plain resting will be among the pleasures eagerly indulged in by holiday-makers.

MANY WILL MAKE their first trip of the year to some of the lakes in the outlying districts. Others will make use of the time to get the now partly grown gardens into shape, and still more will be taking part in the golfing, tennis and lawn bowling tournaments or enjoying the many athletic events that will take place.

On Saturday the Army and Navy Vets and the South Side Legion will meet in a senior soccer fixture at Clarke Stadium while at Renfrew Park a baseball game featuring the Cubs and Eskimos will be played.

THE SENIOR baseball teams will play double-headers on Sunday and Monday at Renfrew Park, while at Clarke Stadium on Sunday a junior baseball game will be played. During the whole week-end the regular schedule of football games will be played on city diamonds.

The Highland Games, the annual event featuring various track, high jumping and steeplechase events, will be held as usual on July 1 at the South Side Athletic grounds.

Several organizations in the city have picnics planned for the day which will be held in the city parks. Special feature pictures will be shown in theatres for those who prefer to spend a cool and quiet Dominion Day. It is expected that the picture houses will be filled to capacity.

NO CARRIER SERVICE will be extended to the public it has been announced by post office officials, although the windows will be open from 8 to 10 a.m. while the public lobby will be open as usual. Outgoing and incoming mails and special delivery service will be handled as usual.

With more than 500 warrants having been issued to Alberta men to travel to Ontario for the harvesting period, the provincial department of agriculture announces that the quota has been passed and that no more transportation warrants will be issued.

HEADS FOR COAST: T. V. Newlove, leader of the Edmonton Schoolboys Band, who with his players, 150 in all, will leave Friday night over the CPR for Vancouver and Victoria. At Vancouver the band will march in the big parade commemorating Vancouver's foundation. On the return trip a stopover will be made at Calgary to play at the Stampede. The players have been issued new uniforms with cowboy hats, silk shirts and blue jeans. Several snappy majorities also will make the trip.

There has been a stepping up of prize money in the cattle classes by 25 per cent, and a generous increase in prize money for all horse classifications. Entries in the livestock classes are heavy, and large entries also are expected before the closing date for other classes of exhibits.

THE HORTICULTURE exhibits will include cut flowers, roots and vegetables from city and district gardens, and there will be special junior and children's classes. There will be sections for arts and crafts, photography, with contestants from the U.S. and all parts of Canada—needlecraft and handicraft, and the culinary department for housewives.

Friday will be children's day at the exhibition, with free admission to the grounds for all youngsters, and special rates on the midway. One feature will be a special livestock parade for the children, with prizes for ticket holders.

Another thing that should make the exhibition an attraction for thousands of country people is the arrangement made by Mr. Wilson for specially reduced rates on railways for the first time since the war.

First Post-War Summer Fair To Offer Many Attractions

Edmonton's first post-war summer fair is going to be the most complete and comprehensive ever held. C. E. Wilson, manager of the Exhibition Association, said Friday.

He announced plans are complete and the stage set for the six-day exhibition July 15 to 20.

THE MIDWAY, to which Edmontonians were accustomed prior to 1933, but which was curtailed because of the war, will be back again this year with the Royal American Shows presenting their latest attractions and thrilling rides.

There will also be two spectacular displays of fireworks and six evening performances in front of the grandstand of "The Exhibition Review of 1946," a show crammed with music, girls and dances, comedy and acrobats. For the followers of the track there will be seven full race cards a day all week.

THE EDMONTON Exhibition traditionally has been the place where city and country meet, and this year there is an even greater emphasis on agriculture and livestock, Mr. Wilson announced.

There has been a stepping up of prize money in the cattle classes by 25 per cent, and a generous increase in prize money for all horse classifications. Entries in the livestock classes are heavy, and large entries also are expected before the closing date for other classes of exhibits.

Similarly, eight pounds of clothes can be washed, double rinsed and dried in 20 minutes with the minimum of soap powder and attention.

Liberals Planning Discussion Groups

Formation of discussion groups throughout Alberta, designed for discussion of current problems of provincial and federal importance, was one step which might be taken by Liberals, "now that greatly increased interest in affairs of the party was being shown," W. J. Stambaugh, Bruce, president of the Alberta Liberal Association, told a group of 50 Edmonton business and professional men at a dinner meeting in the Corona hotel Wednesday evening.

HE REPORTED that he had recently returned from a tour of Northern Alberta and that he found in each area visited a tendency toward Liberalism. He urged that greater effort be put forward by those interested to spread the Liberal message even wider.

He asked those present for expressions of opinion on two problems which he had discussed with people in the rural areas. The two problems Canada faces now are those of immigration and the relaxing of price control, he said.

A STIRRING plea on behalf of persons now in camps as "displaced persons" in Europe, was voiced by P. J. Lazarowich, who suggested that these unfortunate, violently anti-Communist and anti-Fascist would welcome an opportunity to settle in some of this country's undeveloped areas. He included the Polish army of General Anders in England in his listing of the type of people who should be admitted to Canada.

Most of the others who expressed opinions agreed that Canada was in need of greater population, but that practice, and many stressed that right selection should be made. Greater efforts should be made to assimilate immigrants so that they would become Canadians.

NO DISSENTING voices were raised when it was suggested that relaxing of price controls should be gradual, but that controls should be eliminated when marketing conditions warranted such lifting of barriers.

SUBSIDIZED SPORT

Several sports received subsidies from the French government prior to the war. The highest sum, about $11,400, went to encourage rifle shooting, and the lowest, $80 for baseball.

Hereford Group Concludes Tour

The Alberta Hereford Association concluded a tour of Central Alberta Friday with visits to the breeding establishments of Charles Kallal and E. Moore, Tofield, and Claude Gallinger's farm near Edmonton. The tour included a field day at the University of Alberta farm which was attended by more than 75 Hereford breeders from all parts of Central Alberta.

Despite the heavy rains that prevailed for most of the tour which started from Calgary last Tuesday, the party increased in numbers daily. Visits were made to establishments of Halcro, Prizans, Aldrie, Crossland, Carstairs, Westcott, Garfield, Bowden, Innisfail, Benhold, Markerville, Lacombe, Wetaskiwin, Tofield and Edmonton during the tour.

Escape Artists Held by Police

Two young escape artists are in the hands of police here and officials of the city force are determined that this time they will stay put.

THE BOYS, BOTH in their teens, escaped from a juvenile detention home at Vancouver recently and made their way to Edmonton, where they were apprehended early Thursday morning and handed over to juvenile authorities here for safe-keeping until they could be sent back to the coast.

The youngsters managed to escape about 1:30 p.m. the same day, but were re-arrested by Det. Sgt. J. E. Peterson shortly before 6 p.m. They have been securely locked-up at the South Side station. Police officials are hoping Vancouver police will collect them soon.

Locale of Picture Pleases Officials

Although weather has limited actual filming of Paramount's picture, The Emperor's Waltz, in one day in five, Hollywood picture officials now at Jasper consider the setting "just perfect." R. M. Monroe, a public relations official for Paramount, said here Friday.

MR. MONROE was visiting Edmonton for a day prior to returning to Jasper. He calculated it would take "four or five more days" to complete the work on the picture being done in Jasper.

Bing Crosby, noted film and radio star, sharing lead roles in the picture with Joan Fontaine, will not visit Edmonton before returning to Hollywood, Mr. Monroe said.
